

This document is an evolving initiative taken on by some members of the Lincoln Scholars Program at Centre College to use our voices and privileges to contribute to and stand in solidarity with the Black Lives Matter Movement.

Dear Reader,

Thank you for joining us in this initiative of educating ourselves as a mechanism of fostering greater compassion in our society, as well as holding each other accountable to challenge the systemic racism and structural injustice against Black lives that prevails in our society. As we share this document with you, we want to take a moment to honor the lives of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, Tony McDade, David McAtee, Ahmaud Arbery, and the countless other Black folx who have lost their lives to or been otherwise harmed by racist actions and policies. We've created this document to clearly state that we undeniably believe that Black lives matter, and to ensure that each one of us will continue to commit ourselves to achieve racial justice in our own individual ways.

The purpose of this collaborative effort is to compile anti-racism works and resources in one document for everyone to easily access, read, share, and discuss among their social groups.

If you've received this document and would like to:

1. Give us feedback or/and have questions or suggestions, please reach out to l.bonetvelazquez@centre.edu or anukriti.kunwar@centre.edu.
2. Add more resources, please click on this document and add in the links to the resources along with a short description.

Best,

Core Contributors of the initiative: Lincoln Scholars for Racial Justice

(This is an evolving document and we recognize it does not include all the informative resources that are out there but this is an initial start to our dedicated commitment to racial justice.)
